

We replant

More trees are planted each year than are harvested, so Oregon will always have flourishing forests.

Photo: Sam Beebe

We protect water

Oregon's forests filter most of our drinking water.

OregonForests.org/ForestProud

Photo: Jim Rivers

We conserve habitat

Wildlife biologists and landowners work together to protect sensitive habitat.

We are high-tech

Advances in science and technology have changed how we plant, grow and harvest trees.